AN ILL-STARRED JUDGE.

Mr. Justice Begbie's evil star would seem to be in the ascendant this season. Commencing with the Eddy outrage he commits a series of judicial eccentricities on the way to Cariboo; and no sooner does he arrive on Williams Creek than malignity appears to usurp the seat of justice and judgment. Not content with ignoring petit juries, setting aside verdicts, and brow-beating counsel, he has more recently betokened himself to the work of insulting grand jurors. But the fates would seem to be against him, and in every attempt to chastise those with whom he is brought into contact the red pierces his own hand. Every fresh effort to right himself before the public, or perhaps, to revenge himself upon an imaginary enemy, only tends to sink him lower in public estimation. In addressing the grand jury, on the 25th ultimo, he took occasion to remark: (we copy from the Scout), "that it had been his intention before transmitting the former report to the Administrator of the Government to have called one or two of their number together and to give to certain statements therein copy, and about which he thought they had been misled, but having only received the document on Saturday he had no opportunity of doing so till Monday, when it appeared in print; he deemed it necessary to transmit it at once, as any delay on his part after it had been published might lead the Administrator of the Government to believe that he was remiss in this duty." Now, assuming that his Honor was strictly correct, the excuse for neglecting so obvious a duty must strike everyone as miserably weak. But it would appear that his excuse was as disingenuous as it was puerile. The foreman of the grand jury, in a letter published in the same paper, expresses strong doubt that he and his fellows were misled, and adds: "Now, the report was handed in on a Saturday forenoon, and was published from a copy made by the Clerk of the Court, over whom the Court, and not the jury, had control." The editor of the paper also adds: "We feel a duty we owe to the grand jury and to ourselves to state, in reference to the situation that fell from his Honor, Mr. Justice Begbie, in the course of his remarks to the grand jury yesterday respecting their report appearing in print before he had an opportunity of considering it, that the copy of the document was not surreptitiously obtained by us, as his Honor's remarks implied, but procured on application from Mr. Pooley, Registrar of Court, on Saturday evening, the 23rd ultimo. It must be matter of extreme regret to every right-thinking man that a Supreme Judge should be habitually committing acts so well calculated to destroy that reverence for the Bench which all desire to cultivate. Mr. Begbie, by his recent extraordinary decision, and his equally extraordinary department, has rendered it impossible for any independent man to respect either himself or his Court, and the sooner he ceases to administer, or rather mis-administer the law, the better will it be for the cause of justice and good order in this Colony, and for the prestige of British law upon the Pacific Coast. We are glad to see a sensible article in the Scout of the 24th ultimo, upon the subject of the recent differences between the Judge and the miners, and in which the only true position is ably taken, viz: that whatever relief may be obtained through the medium of a Miners' Board, the necessity for the removal of Mr. Begbie or the appointment of another Judge and the creation of a Court of Appeal still remains. Commenting upon His Excellency's reply to the delegation, our contemporary complains that the very gist of the complaint—the removal of Mr. Begbie, or the creation of a Court of Appeal—has been passed over in silence, and adds that the prospect of a union of these Colonies can in no way affect the question, or excuse His Excellency for postponing the appointment of a second Judge, in response to the appeals of the people, and in pursuance of the provision long since made by the Legislature. We conclude the subject as follows:—We think that it is the duty of the Executive; even if he does not possess the power of removal, at least to institute an enquiry into the causes of the discontent, that exist relative to the acts of the Judge of the Supreme Court in recent cases. The dignity of the office as well as common justice to the community at large demand this at the hands of the Government, and we trust that His Honor the Administrator of the Government, who will be here soon, will lose no time in taking this subject under his serious consideration."

The British Columbian.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 11, 1866.

THE GALLED JADE WINCES.

In another part of the present impression will be found a portion of a dispatch written by Governor Seymour in February last and addressed to the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The paper may, in a word, be characterized as a profound exposition of the history and relations of the Colonies of British Columbia and Vancouver Island, with a special view to the question of union. There are some minor points to which we are compelled to take exception, and with which we shall deal at a future time. But, taken as a whole, it is a truthful and unvarnished statement of the case. It is, perhaps, scarcely to be wondered at, under all the circumstances which surround the vexed subject, that the promulgation of the able paper in question should have the effect of ruffling the temper and destroying the equilibrium of Victoria demagogues. The darker the plot, the more unjust the cause, the hotter the indignation at exposure and defeat. All wickedness is weakness; every knave is but a fool with a circum-lendibus; and it is not surprising that our neighbors should play the fool now after having played the knave so long, and having come out at "the small end of the horn." But although it was to be expected that these people would rave and bellow like a detected foot-pad, one could hardly be prepared for the cool impertinence with which they now attempt to charge the consequences of their own misdeeds upon others. One paper says:—"By the false representations and official intrigues of an unworthy neighbor, the people of Vancouver Island, individually and collectively, have been traduced in the eyes of the Home Government, a death blow has been aimed at their best interests, and the attempt made to crush them under foot." If to grasp the crawling assassin by the throat and wrest the dagger from his uplifted hand be unworthy intrigue, then are we open to the charge. Perhaps the most extraordinary phase of the impotent rage of the Victoria clique is the outpouring of their filthy Billingsgate upon the devoted head of our excellent and popular Governor. "To be stigmatized as liar, slanderer, knave, deceiver—in short everything but a gentleman, for merely telling the simple truth, unmasking intrigue, and defeating chicanery is certainly strange. Yet, all the vilest epithets in the vocabulary of Billingsgate are heaped upon Governor Seymour, and for no worse a crime than attending to the interests of the Colony over which he has been placed by our beloved Queen. Well may His Excellency exclaim, in the words of Martin Tupper:

"Bravo Detraction! I feel worse and worse,
Praised is he whom you delight to curse;
Go on, Go on—you serve my purpose so,
The more you slander me, the more I grow;
Spit scorn, spout hate! I'll glory in your blame,
Your horrid trade do but help cool fame,
One vile foe stirs up a million friends,
A waip attacks me, and a world defends."

We have taken some slight liberty with the great poet and philosopher in the alteration of a few words, but not altering in any way the sense of the text. The abuse of Victoria politicians is indeed the best certificate of character Governor Seymour could have. But, it may be asked, why all this outburst of indignation? What is there in the terms offered by the Imperial Bill to call it forth? Let us see. There have for some time been two political parties in Victoria, agreed, it is true, in desiring union with British Columbia, but differing as to the basis upon which such a union would be most advantageous to them, one known as the "Free Port and Union" party, the other advocating a "Union and Tariff." The latter party has been led by DeCosmos, McClure & Co., and that it represents public opinion more fully than the other may fairly be inferred from the fact that both these gentlemen owe their

to resign his seat and test the point at the polls. The challenge was accepted, and the contest which was to decide whether Victoria was in favor of Free Port or Tariff came off. The candidates on the Tariff side were Messrs. DeCosmos and McClure, and those on the side of the Free Port were Messrs. Young and Sproat. The one single issue of Free Port or Tariff was fairly raised, and upon that, and that alone, the election turned. And what was the result? The two Tariff candidates were triumphantly returned by a large majority, and Mr. Young lost his seat! This result constitutes the most incontrovertible evidence that Victoria wanted union with a Customs Tariff. With respect to the question of the Seat of Government, although no formal expression was taken upon the subject, it was distinctly and repeatedly stated by Mr. DeCosmos and others, in their places in the House, that they were willing to waive all claim to the Seat of Government in favor of New Westminster. Thus it will be seen that the only points of real difference between the conditions of union desired by Victoria and the conditions upon which it is now offered to them are the form of Government and the distribution of seats. Victoria politicians have undoubtedly advocated a "representative" form of Government, in the fullest sense of the term, for the united Colonies, and they also claimed for their town the right to send six members to the new parliament! It is scarcely matter of surprise that men holding views so extravagant should be dissatisfied with the proposal to give them two representatives in a Government composed of a legislature about half nominated. Yet, even upon these two points we meet them by saying: So great was your anxiety for union, and so important did you consider it, that you implored Her Majesty to confer the honor upon you "under such constitution as Her Majesty's Government may be pleased to grant," and so eager were you to obtain it, and so docile did you promise to become that you added to your humble prayer for unconditional union the following solemn pledge:

"And this House pledges itself, in case Her Majesty's Government shall grant such Union, to ratify the same by legislative enactment, if required."

Your prayer has been answered; and although the conditions differ little from those that you yourselves advocated, you howl forth your indignation like raving idiots, abuse your gracious Queen for giving you what you asked, grossly slander her representative because, in opposition to the wish of the Colony he governs, he was willing to meet you on fair and equitable ground, because he was not willing to bind us hand and foot and lay us utterly helpless upon the altar of your rapacious and ungovernable political man. What must your gracious Queen think of you when she learns of your ingratitude—your miserable threat of treason? What can she think? What about the sacred "pledge" you gave to "ratify the grant by legislative enactment"? It is alleged that both Governor Seymour and Governor Kennedy have systematically traduced the people of Victoria and their representatives, and damaged their reputation and influence in the estimation of the Imperial Government, as well as in the eyes of the world. Could anything possibly be more absurd? Could all the Vice-regal dispatches that were ever written so effectively do this as the conduct of the politicians and legislators of Victoria themselves? Has not the whole history of the Assembly, for the last two years, been one unintermitted scene of disgraceful trickery and political tergiversation, but too well calculated to destroy its reputation both at home and abroad? Let us hope that all the imbecile bosh and contemptible gasconade with which the press of Victoria teems—the miserable threat to seek at once revenge, and relief in the bosom of the neighboring Republic—let us hope that all this is but that harmless outburst which precedes the return of reason. The poet tells us that when the wife's resolution was yielding to her frailty she—"whispering that she'd never consent—consented." The Scotch, in their grim way of sneering at a coward, describe him as crying "Haud me, or I'll fecht!" Let them spew out their fury. With the good-natured coal-heaver we can say "It doesn't hurt oi, and it pleases she." They will be the better to throw off the feckid corruption with which they are surcharged.

"Let them alone, they'll all come home,
And bring their tails behind them."

If they should think better of it, and "place their necks under the galling yoke of British Columbia," good and well. If not, if they go over to Brother Jonathan, or establish a little power of their own, and fall back to their natural level—a
